

Algirian Experience in Developing and moderization of small and Med institutions and its Role in development

Ghiat Cherif Bouguemoum Mohamed
Faculty of Economic
Guolma University
Algeria

Abstract

The importance of small and medium companies (SME) in supporting the economic development comes from their role in creating new job's opportunities and their participation in the total added value. This gives the SME a prominent status in both the developed and developing economies through providing the necessary means to develop this sort of companies.

This article would spotlight on the current situation and the problems that face the SME in Algeria, in addition to some suggestion.