Abstract

The search includes a study of some of the Aramean legal documents discovered in Syria and Egypt.

It deals with the Aramean legal documents discovered in Syria-very few of them, which are concerned with some of the public and private law systems.

Also analyzes the Aramean legal documents discovered in Egypt, defines their identity and the range of their indication to the Aramaean law, and refutes the Israeli researcher's claims regarding those documents, and presents some samples of the Aramaean contracts that have been discovered in Egypt, together with their analysis and the statement of their significance.
