
Towards a balanced building system Comparison between Damascus and Dubai

Dr. Ahmad Amer Jabri*

Abstract

There were many legal frameworks and engineering conditions of the construction systems in Arab countries. They were developed depending on the importance of the urban boom, taking into account the priorities of the cities in their strategies, which depend on the balance between the characteristics and urban development in the world.

The research compares between the data of Dubai city, which became a state that grows in the Arab Gulf as a real estate investment and attraction for capital, the city of Damascus, which is looking for a role through this context, and the development possibility of its building system in accordance with its dreams in order to be in balance with its background heritage.

Keywords: Legal frame work in building, construction system in Arab countries

For the abstract in Arabic see pages (187-205).

* Assistant professor-Department of Architectural Design-Faculty of Architecture-University of Damascus

References:

- Michelle Truper - Philosophy of Law- Translation of George Saad Publications - House Lights Beirut - First Edition - 2004.
- D. Abdurrahman Badawi - the philosophy of law and politics of Hegel - publications dar al shoruk - Lebanon 1996.
- D. Mustafa Metwally - the education system in Saudi Arabia - Sixth Edition - Dar graduates for publication - Riyadh --1,998
- FrancoisGeny-science et technique en droit pive positif-2eme.t-1924
- D. Alznou Hassan Ali - the philosophy of law - the first edition - Pressmeanings - 1975.
- The commonlaw system, construction of Egyptin 2008 - the official Egyptian Gazette - No. 19 bis (a) the date of 11/5/2008.
- The facts attached to the Egyptian Official Gazette - No. 82 bis (A) 8/4/2009..
- Dubai Municipality
www.dubaibuildings.ds.ae
- Dubai Municipality- Department of Buildings & Housing-Building Code Regulations & Construction Specifications - February 2004
- Cepal review-United Nation - UNCTAD - n75- December 2001
- D. Abdurrahman Badawi - the philosophy of law and politics of Hegel - publications dar al shoruk- Lebanon 1996.
- R.Kaplan-D.P.Norton-The Strategy Focused organization-Harvard business school press - 2000
- Abdel-Salam Abdel Ghaffar - mental superiority and innovation - the Arab Renaissance Publishing House - 1977.